Saving For a Rainy Day, Planning For the Future

It happens to all of us. The car stopped running, the refrigerator dies, the hot water heater needs to be replaced. If this happened to you today, would you be prepared?

By saving a portion of your refund, you are saving for when these emergencies happen. Starting a small savings account that you gradually contribute to is a great way to prepare for some of life's unexpected events.

That rainy day fund will grow over time and soon you will have savings that can help you plan for your future.
