In Memoriam

Thomas Fontaine Stallworth, Jr.

"Pops"

- WHEREAS, We, the members of the Detroit City Council, join the family and friends of Mr. Thomas Fointaine Stallworth, Jr. in honoring his life and legacy. Mr. Stallworth made his heavenly transition on September 18, 2019, after a life well-lived. We pause to offer sincere condolences to his loving and devoted wife of 68 years, former State Representative Alma Stallworth; his eldest son, Thomas III; second son, KB; daughters-in-law, Nic Wells-Stallworth and Nicole Stallworth; grandchildren Thomas IV (Aja), Joseph, Misha, Tonie, KB Wellington, Madison, Lance and Harrison; Godson Clifford; brother William; two great-grandchildren and many, many other relatives and friends; and
WHEREAS, Mr. Stallworth's mother, Lucy Stallworth, was an entrepreneur and instilled a good work ethic and business mind in young Thomas. As a young boy, he developed an ingenious business plan to have a paper route that covered Southwest Detroit, Dearborn, River Rouge, Ecorse and Inkster. Instead of carrying all of the papers across the large area, he strategically hid wagons with papers along the route to make for easier and quicker delivery! Like many smart men of today, Thomas offered profit sharing to friends who made paper deliveries for him and he had multiple bank accounts to save his earnings. Mr. Stallworth's business savvy and financial acumen continued throughout life. He graduated from Southwestern High School and initially attended Wilberforce University. He transferred to Wayne State University (then Wayne University) and completed studies in Accounting. He also was a veteran having served in the Marines. Mr. Stallworth was a dedicated husband to the lovely Alma, and a strong role model for Thomas III and KB. Mr. Stallworth worked two jobs to provide for his family. His hard work allowed the Stallworths to become one of the first of three African-American families to integrate into a largely Jewish Northwest Detroit neighborhood in 1962; and
WHEREAS, Mr. Stallworth passed the civil service exams with the City of Detroit and the State of Michigan and had a long career in accounting. While working for the State of Michigan, Mr. Stallworth held the positions of comptroller at the State Mental Health Hospital; Lead Auditor with the Michigan Department of Social Services; and ultimately, the State of Michigan, Director of Internal Audit for Wayne County Social Services. For many years he worked two jobs - he was an accountant by day and a salesman by night. He was a humble man who did not boast of his own professional accomplishments. Mr. Stallworth was the first African-American employed at Hudson's in Northland Mall. He was affectionately known as "The Tax Man" because he helped people with their taxes right up until the 2019 season. Mr. Stallworth also was called "Mr. Hudson's" due to his 41 years of service as a salesman at the store. Despite working many hours for many years, Mr. Stallworth enjoyed his leisure activities of discussing politics, listening to and collecting jazz and blues albums, gardening, playing cards, and telling jokes; and
WHEREAS, Mr. Stallworth also was a man ahead of his time because he was content to work as a civil servant and let his wife, Alma, follow her dreams and run for public office. He even became her campaign treasurer. He supported Representative Stallworth for over two decades in public service. He ensured the Stallworth family was good at home so she could ensure the well-being of her constituents. Then, when Mrs. Stallworth became ill, he continued to care for and support her - even learning home medical treatments and how to cook; and
WHEREAS Mr. Thomas Fontaine Stallworth, Jr., leaves a legacy of strength, dignity, and service. Earthly reminders of this are his sons, Thomas III and KB, their children, and others whose lives were touched and made better by Mr. Stallworth. The hard work, sacrifice, and selflessness of Mr. Stallworth not only benefited his family, but also so many in the City of Detroit and the State of Michigan. He will be greatly missed, and his contributions and lessons taught will live on forever. As the Bible says in Matthew 25:21, "Well done good and faithful servant! As you have been faithful with a few things here on earth; I will put you in charge of many things in the kingdom of heaven." NOW, THEREFORE BE IT
RESOLVED, That the Detroit City Council and office of Council President Brenda Jones, join with family and friends in honoring the life and legacy of Mr. Thomas Fontaine Stallworth, Jr. - affectionately known as "Pops."
