To whom it may concern,

This letter is written on behalf of Alkebu-lan Village and the community we serve.

It has come to our attention that many our community fear driving in Detroit due to the unapparelled increase in people speeding through red lights putting lives in danger.

We stand in unity of the need for traffic lights that record these blatant violations and issue substantial fines to the violators.

To whom it may concern,

This letter is written on behalf of the Million Man Alumni Association of Detroit Michigan.

It is apparent that some Detroit drivers are violating established traffic laws by blatantly running red lights.

This total disregard of our traffic laws puts the lives of the citizens of Detroit at unnecessary risk.

We need traffic lights that record these blatant violations and issue substantial fines to the violators.

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing out of a growing concern for the safety of pedestrians and motorists, because of the increased traffic light violations. It seems that there is an increase in red light offenses in the city of Detroit, and it may help to have cameras that could take pictures and send citations to the offender.

Sincerely,

Dear Detroit Police Commissioners and Detroit City Council;

The Obama Weekend Committee would like to bring attention to the need and address the dangers that are present in our city in the form of people running red lights.

We have discussed how we are stopping at red lights and wait longer to make sure everyone has stopped in all directions before we proceed. Many have witnessed these tragic accidents from people running a red light that left some in critical condition and have cost others the life of loved ones.

Detroit prides itself in the updated growth & presentation of the city with added traffic. We can bring awareness to the problem, and find a solution by saving lives with installed traffic lights with cameras that will send out citations and warnings. Thank you for looking into a solution to this problem!

Sincerely,

To whom it may concern:

I am the editor of a newspaper and mother of two children who attend school in Detroit. The street are increasingly becoming unsafe as a result of drivers, police officers and fire trucks running red lights. This morning I witnessed a fire truck stop at a red light on Joy Road near Southfield, then proceed through the light when traffic cleared. This is an ongoing problem with police officers and lately the fire department. Some will put on their lights to cross through a red light then turn them off after crossing. Their impatience could cost someone their life. It also sets a bad example for law obeying citizens. If the traffic signals were equipped with cameras, this could stop drivers, police officers and firefighters from disobeying traffic laws.

Dear Detroit Police Commissioners and City Council Members

I would like to bring to your attention the need for intervention when it comes to people running red lights. My daughter witnessed a very bad accident where she had to go to the aid of a driver that was hurt and needed to be kept still, calm and awake until the EMS could attend to his injuries. At the same time, she watched someone take care of a scared child while the firemen used the "Jaws Of Life" equipment to pry her mother out of the car. It was very traumatic.

Please research what can be done to bring awareness to a very urgent need for safety prevention and precautions in this matter. Cameras installed is one way of retrieving data on the high level of infractions going on at street lights and intersections.

Subject: How to stop people from running red lights in Detroit with Technology

I want to see increased penalties for people who run red lights and cause accidents. When a driver runs a red light, they are infringing on another drivers right of safe passage on public streets. When that right is violated, then you must get a picture of the car, license plate and driver. If the car is stolen, getting the license plate is no good and you must identify the person driving the car. Working cameras that can accomplish identifying the driver and, the vehicle is essential to public safety, especially in neighborhoods.

Stationary and portable units that can be quickly set up at problem intersections will increase public safety. It would also benefit the public to have wrong way driver detection equipment installed on all freeways in Detroit because that will increase public safety in our city too. Therefore, I would support the installation of red-light cameras at intersections and streets.

Commissioner Bernard, please share this communication with your fellow Police Commissioners -

As I mentioned at the Commissioners meeting this evening, I would like for you and your fellow commissioners to address the problem of the alarmingly increasing numbers of cars in the city speeding and running red lights and stop signs, before we have many more fatalities. I suggest that we put speed bumps before stop signs.

To whom it may concern,

I would like for you to be aware of the serious need to address drivers running red lights in the city of Detroit. We can have some round table discussions on Zoom all across the city to get ideas on how we can better make our city streets safer!

Sincerely, Caring For Our City!
