

Cruisin' with Counts

Safer Streets Edition

Cruisin' with Counts is all about building real connections between City officials and Detroit residents—creating space for open, honest conversations about the power of blight removal to transform our neighborhoods.

Now, we're taking it a step further and expanding our focus: safer, more accessible streets for everyone through the City's Safe Streets for Detroit (SS4D) initiative.

Join us for a Community Walk and Talk along the Wyoming Avenue Corridor. We're walking it with you, side by side, to hear directly about your experiences:

- What feels unsafe
- What works well
- What changes would make this street feel safer and more connected

This is your neighborhood. Your voice matters. Let's reimagine the road together.
