

Hi Brad,

To relocate the unit, we would need to recover the refrigerant and move it, which would be expensive and labor-intensive. Our electricians would also need to be involved, and it would cost around a couple of thousand dollars. As a result, we believe that installing a screen around the unit would be a more cost-effective option since it was installed in the same spot as the previous one. Do you know if the historic commission would be okay with screening it off instead?

Thank You,
